THE EFFORT OF THE MONKS SEEM TO HAVE WORN OFF
QUITE A BIT...

MY HOME
PASTRY...

A

SOMEONE

I HAVE A FEELING I RECEIVED SOMEHOW

THE PAST...

Thank you for reading!
Here starts the omake manga ...

... No Tada!

able, and it's no wonder again! In my truth, thank you for reading this book! I hope you enjoyed it.

This was my first published piece, in the same time I did in the manga being turned around in terms of narrative and plot.

It first, when I was contacted for the manga being turned, the message I was working with said, "Let's start working on your next manga. Preferably something with a different content and feel from the manga you submitted," and it was the first chapter of the manga.

Since my first work was a romantic comedy full of pretty women and girls, I aimed for something completely different. This time around. But, as a result, I think I was a little too naive, and I was afraid that I'd get too far. I was nervous that it was not too serious, and that I was told I could continue writing it. It felt like a relief. I can't be thankful enough.

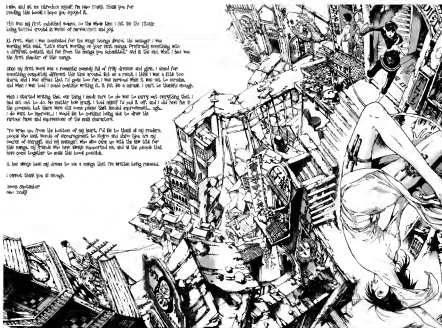

When I started writing this, my thing I made sure to do was to carry out everything that I had set out to do. No matter how long, I had myself to put it off, and I did have the idea of the process, but there were still some pieces that needed improvement... right. I do want to improve. I would like to continue being able to draw the various faces and expressions of the main characters.

To wrap up, from the bottom of my heart, I'd like to thank all my readers, people who read, friends of encouragement, to begin and share (you are my source of energy, and my support), who also came up with the idea for this manga, my friends who have always supported me, and all the people that have come together to make this book possible.

I have always been my dream to see a manga that I've written being released.

I cannot thank you all enough.
